OUR STORY

About Zeporah

Zeporah was created for families trying to hold everything together when someone they love becomes seriously ill or passes away.

When a loved one receives a serious diagnosis, life can change quickly. Families may suddenly be managing doctors, hospice conversations, caregiving, appointments, paperwork, difficult questions, fear, and decisions they never expected to face. Then, when death comes, the responsibilities do not stop. There may be a funeral to plan, relatives to update, documents to find, accounts to handle, benefits to contact, and countless details that can feel impossible while grieving.

Zeporah was inspired by my aunt Annie Anita April. In 2024, she was diagnosed with stage 4 cancer. My family did what families do when someone they love is sick. We focused on hope, treatment, care, and being present with her. We did not realize how quickly we would be forced to make difficult decisions or how much we would have to figure out on our own.

We spent hours looking for answers, making calls, searching for resources, and trying to understand what was supposed to happen next. We were grieving, but we were also organizing, planning, researching, and trying not to miss anything important.

WHY ZEPORAH EXISTS

Zeporah is being built to make this process feel less overwhelming. It gives families one private place to organize responsibilities, communicate with people they trust, keep track of important information, and find support when they need it.

Zeporah is not here to tell families what to do. It is here to make the path easier to understand when everything feels unfamiliar.

Our goal is simple: families should have more room to care for the people they love, more space to grieve, and less time spent trying to navigate everything alone.

Zeporah gives families one private place to stay organized, connected, and supported through serious illness, loss, and the months that follow.

OUR PURPOSE

Mission

Zeporah creates space for families to care, grieve, and move forward by bringing clarity, connection, and compassionate coordination to serious illness and loss.

SUPPORTING BELIEF

We make overwhelming responsibilities more manageable so families can focus on the people and moments that matter most.

WHAT GUIDES US

Core Values

Care first

Every family deserves patience, warmth, and respect. We do not use fear, urgency, guilt, or pressure to push people through difficult decisions.

"People matter more than processes."

The loved one remains at the center

A loved one is more than a diagnosis, funeral, document, account, or checklist. Their story, wishes, beliefs, traditions, and memory deserve care.

"Every responsibility begins with someone who is loved."

Families are stronger together

One person often becomes the organizer when someone is sick or dies. Zeporah makes shared responsibility easier through clear roles, communication, and respectful boundaries.

"No one should have to carry the weight alone."

Clarity brings comfort

Families should not have to spend hours searching online or making endless calls just to understand what comes next. Clear direction creates breathing room.

"Clear direction creates room to breathe."

Families stay in control

Families decide what to share, who they invite into the process, and when they are ready to ask for support. A pause is not permission to share their story.

“Support should always happen on the family’s terms.”

Dignity is non-negotiable

Every family deserves privacy, cultural respect, and care that honors their faith, relationships, financial reality, and individual way of grieving.

“Every family deserves dignity in every detail.”

Support continues

A diagnosis, hospice transition, funeral, or burial does not end a family’s need for care. Zeporah remains available through the months that follow.

“The hardest day is not the last day a family may need support.”

HOW WE BRING IT TO LIFE

Strategic Pillars

These pillars describe the practical role Zeporah will play in a family's journey. They are designed to create a more connected, organized, and compassionate experience from serious illness through the months after loss.

01 Clear direction when life changes

When serious illness, hospice, or loss enters a family's life, it can be hard to know what needs attention first. Zeporah gives families a clear place to begin, with manageable next steps and a view of what can wait.

02 One place to hold what matters

Important information often ends up spread across phones, emails, notebooks, paper folders, text messages, and conversations. Zeporah brings contacts, questions, documents, tasks, expenses, decisions, reminders, and updates together in one private place.

03 Shared responsibility with care

One person often becomes the default organizer. Zeporah makes it easier to invite trusted people into clear roles, assign tasks, send updates, and create appropriate boundaries around private information.

04 A path to the right support

Families should not have to spend hours searching online or making endless calls just to understand where to begin. Zeporah provides a clearer path toward relevant resources, questions, and qualified support.

05 Care that continues after the hardest day

The funeral or burial is not the end of a family's responsibilities or need for care. Zeporah remains available through the months that follow with organized follow-through, optional reminders, and space to return when ready.

THE WORDS WE WANT FAMILIES TO FEEL

You do not have to do everything today.
